Wording Guide

Here you'll find a few examples of the traditional way of wording your wedding invitations, listed by category of who is hosting the wedding. Remember - this is only a guide, so feel free to be as creative as you like with your wording!

Traditionally, the date and times on wedding invitations are spelled out in full:

*Saturday, the eighteenth of September
Two thousand and eleven at four o'clock in the afternoon*

A note about RSVPs:

Traditionally, R.S.V.P. was written on the invitation, and guests knew to reply on their own stationery. Now, most couples find that they get responses more promptly if they include a separate reply card for guests to complete and post back. You can find our suggested wording for RSVP cards at the end of this guide.

_____ Will attend
_____ Will not attend
Please reply before the tenth of March

Name/s _____
_____ Accept with pleasure
_____ Decline with regret
The favour of a reply is requested by the tenth of March

A note about personalisation of guest names:

To leave out the guest name from the invitation and avoid having to handwrite each name, you can alter the wording to something like:

“request the pleasure of your company”
or “would be delighted if you would join them in celebrating”

Please note we can personalise guest names on flat printed invitations only, but not for letterpress.
(This is because for letterpress, each name requires printing from a plate, so every name would require its own plate.)
